

Customer information regarding per- and polyfluoroalkyl substances (PFAS)

Wuppertal, 11.06.25

In 2023, the European Chemicals Agency (ECHA) published its restriction proposal for a Europe-wide restriction on the production, use and marketing of PFAS (per- and polyfluorinated chemicals).

It is currently unclear to what extent there will be an actual restriction or even a ban on PFAS (per- and polyfluorinated chemicals). As this is currently only a proposal, there is no obligation for manufacturers to confirm the presence or absence of PFAS (per- and polyfluorinated chemicals) unless otherwise regulated. Accordingly, absence confirmations from manufacturers or suppliers are not available for all raw materials at this time.

Until the final, legally binding decision on the published proposal, we hereby confirm compliance with the restrictions under the REACH Regulation (EC) No. 1907/2006.

Of course, we take our responsibility seriously and assure you that we comply with legal obligations and will inform our customers if products from our supply portfolios lose their legal compliance due to future legislation. However, we will only be able to do this once it has been transposed into applicable law and appropriate communication within the supply chain is required.

Information on REACH/SVHC in products of MKC Michels & Kleberhoff Computer GmbH can be found product-related on our homepage. This information is regularly updated and published by us.

All information provided by us in connection with TSCA is based on the data of the manufacturers (upstream suppliers) and is provided to the best of our knowledge and belief. We accept no guarantee or liability for factors that are beyond our knowledge and control.
